Australia is proud to be hosting World Aquaculture for the first time since 1999. This annual event will incorporate the biennial Australasian Aquaculture Conference and Trade Show and will see several thousand attendees from around the world converge on the city of Adelaide. World Aquaculture will be an opportunity for the international aquaculture community to present their work, exchange ideas and develop a vision for the future of the aquaculture industry as we focus on the theme of 'Create, Nurture, Grow'.

Attending will enable you to:

- View a large and diverse selection of suppliers to the aquaculture and related industries.
- Enjoy a comprehensive Program, including an impressive line up of speakers from academia, research & industry.
- Network at the largest gathering of aquaculture professionals in the Asia Pacific in 2014.

Aquaculture in South Australia

Major species produced in South Australia include Pacific Oysters, Tuna, Mussels, Abalone, Snapper, Freshwater Fish, Barramundi, Atlantic Salmon, Freshwater Crayfish, Rock Lobster and Inland Saline species.

South Australia is a State of opportunity, and few sectors demonstrate this more clearly than the aquaculture industry. While farm gate growth is impressive, it only tells part of the story. To a large degree, the aquaculture industry has only made use of some of the opportunities offered by the marine environment. Indications are that there is great potential for further growth. South Australia has particular natural advantages as an aquaculture location and we must protect these environmental factors to ensure there is stable and sustainable growth.

*We look forward to
